get started

...It's another school year. A new crop of freshmen meet the traditions of Butler University. A new group of seniors is preparing to take their academic training and apply it to their futures. A new number of international students are experiencing the United States for the first time. There is a large number of new things, people and events on campus and it is time to start this year. What it is going to take to be you at BU? Will it mean getting involved with SGA, joining a fraternity or sorority, excelling in academics, or just participating and enjoying sports on campus? No matter what it involves The Drift hopes to capture all of this year's experiences, fall, winter and spring. So without further ado it is time to...get started!

Bulldogs Into The Streets, otherwise known as BITS, is a program that gives Freshman students the opportunity to volunteer at various places around Indianapolis. Students were put into groups that were led by upperclassmen, most of whom had been involved in BITS before. Spending the afternoon at various charities around town welcomed students into Butler's volunteering community, allowed them to meet new people, and gave them a chance to help the community before classes started.

The sisters of Pi Beta Phi let students about the perks of being in their sorority. Every sorority and fraternity took advantage of Block Party to get their names known around campus. For many of the freshman and transfer students this is their first chance to learn about the campus's Greek Life.

Jimmy Johns passes out free sandwiches to students. One incentive to come to Block Party was the free food. Meanwhile, groups try many different strategies to lure students to their tables, including striking a pose.

Dance Marathon Raises $ for Riley Hospital

feel the beat, and move your feet! Students got down with the rhythm of the music to benefit kids. The money raised by Dance Marathon went to Riley Hospital for Children here in Indianapolis.

Not only did Dance Marathon spend time dancing, they also had fun visiting the children at Riley Hospital (right).

Students a rousing game of connect four during one of their breaks that they took between dance-offs during the night.

Additionally, participants were able to spend time wall climbing, playing table tennis, and just acting like the kids they were trying to support.

If students were not adventurous enough to participate in rock walls or obstacle courses, they were given a chance to create their own sand art. Right: Students were given an animal to fill with different colors of sand a souvenir of their wild college days.

What to do on the weekend is a question asked by new students all over campus. To combat this issue, SGA's Program Board invited students to participate in "Where the Wild Things Are." A yearly event, with a different theme each year, the night was filled with fun games, free food, arts and crafts. Free give ways like slap bracelets, wild sunglasses, and animal masks were sure ways to give students something to do and remind them of the good old days of school carnivals.

BLUE, WHERE ARE YOU?

Missing Mascot

time to...go to the streets

The university began the Fall 2008 semester without an important member of the Butler family. The costume of mascot, Butler Blue, had gone missing.

The search for Blue gained national attention and mascots across the country, including the Indianapolis Colt's Blue, joined in search.

The missing costumes were found in late November but were too damaged to be used.

Butler's new mascot, Hink, made his debut during basketball season.

The Colt's mascot, also by the name of Blue, filled in for the missing Butler Blue at the Franklin football game. Apparently the reward was big for his dawg friend.

Blue II enjoys attending games and being Butler's live mascot. He can frequently be found around campus.

"Crew is quite possibly the bestest thing I ever decided to do. It has made the transition to college life oh so much easier, mostly because the people on the team are absolutely awesome." - Claire Brownson

All Sebald claimed, "Rowing through the fatigue and blisters" was the hardest thing about crew. To achieve this state of exhaustion Butler's crew team spent a large amount of time on the water this fall, but for many it was worth it. When asked what her most memorable moment this year was, Lindsey Moore stated, "I loved meeting all of the really cool people from Butler and IUPUI. They make all moments fun, but I would have to say, my first race."

Providing leadership and brotherhood among bands members, Kappa Kappa Psi worked to show that people in bands always have more fun. With costume parties, bowling, and baseball outings, these band members provided fun for all.

Coffee House Performers Galore

During Open Mike Nights at Starbucks, singers and songwriters are given the opportunity to show off their talent...

...As a result Coffee House fosters Butler's very own American Idol, complete with original talent from the student body...

...And in the the students get to appreciate thier peer's talents outside the classroom as well as within it.

Cappella groups, such as Freshly Brewed, also got into the swing of things and showed off their talent at one of Coffee Houses's events, demonstrating that there is fun to be had for all and for many different types of listeners.

Not limited to the guitar and a cappella groups, students are encouraged to show thier talents in numerous ways, including playing the cello.

Beyond the Books

Phi Delta Chi

Whether it is grilling out or going out the members of Phi Delta Chi take time away from the pharmaceutical textbooks and have some fun. The goal of Phi Delta Chi is to promote community among the Pharmacy majors and give support during the rigorous course loads in the students years at Butler.

Many students at Butler aren't lucky enough to say that they have tasted true ethnic cuisine. However, the students that attended events put on by Butler's different ethnic groups can say they have tasted the world! Through Latinos Unidos, ASIA, Sangam and the International club students experienced tasting food from places such as China, India, Latin America and many more without leaving the comfort of Butler's campus!

Independently Leading Independent Council

The Independent Council works to create better community among students not involved in Greek life. Part of their goal is to get students involved in events that they might feel excluded from because of their non Greek status. In this vein they participated in events for the Greek's philanthropies and held their own give back concert.

- 1 Building new buildings means building new experiences for students.

Construction on Campus

time to... get excited

The construction at Butler, no matter how long it may seem to be, all ends up being fabulous in the end.

One of the most exciting building projects of the year was the construction of the new addition to the Pharmacy Building.

Students got to experience the hustle and bustle of project coordination as they watched the new Pharmacy Building slowly become whole.

Additionally, while students could not help with the construction here on campus, they were given the opportunity to be involved in Extreme Home Makeover here in Indianapolis.

This picture of the Pharmacy building was taken towards the end of constructing. Students watched to building go from empty shell to an all new green idea".

Club Sports

time to...

Let's face it, not all of use have the time or talent to be on one of Butler's Division I sports teams. However, getting involved in club sports is a great way to keep up with sports skills. As many students discovered, club sports are an opportunity to shine. Whether through intense soccer or lacrosse games, or laid back games of ultimate frisbee, students were able to take a break from studying and stay in shape.

Trike Week Triking it Up

Many different competitions took place over the course of Trike week, such as the tricycle race above.

Trike Week includes many events that require all shapes, sizes, and physical exertion. Some of these events include...

...the beauty pageant among sororities, and the tricycle race. Probably the main event of the week, the race was witnessed by many students who came out to support their favorite sorority....

...additionally there was the dance contest where groups of dancers pull off fun and classic dance moves to show their excitement for the weeks activities and support a good cause.

Everybody's favorite game is always the dunking booth as could be seen by the long line to play this intense game.

This year's event not only allowed students who were athletically active to participate and succeed, but also those students who might excel at a more inactive level. Below, students duke it out by playing video games in the HRC

As an interhousing competition, the yearly Spring Sports Spectacular allowed students to release their competitive natures and earn some bragging rights in a whole slew of events and competitions. From basketball, to kickball, to ping pong students asserted their ability to play hard and be number one.

- 1 Declare a major and start working toward graduating.
- 2 Realize that there is more to life than just studying.
- 3 Join the respective academic club for the major and participate in fun events such as planting trees, chalking sidewalks, and listening to visiting speakers.

Giving back to the Earth is one of Butler's many academic clubs' greatest attributes.

Students prepare to chalk the sidewalks of Butler to gain support for one of their upcoming events.

BU and Acknowledge

time to...

This year the yearbook staff attempted to take a look and discover the different ways that students expressed their individuality and collective spirit of BU over the course of three seasons. From academics, to clubs, to sports, and campus life Butler students displayed fun and giving natures no matter what time of year it was.

The editors of this book would like to acknowledge and thank all the people that helped make this book possible. First, we have to acknowledge all Butler University and all of its groups and programs who without there would be no need for a yearbook. Next, we would specifically like to thank the different staff, departments, and peers that provided information when it was most needed, including Butler Athletics, David McCullough, Jennie Jones, Samantha Bane, Chappell Graduation Images, Beth Alexander, Lisa Markus, Lindsey Joo, Fred Yangia, the Modern Language Center. Additionally we would like to thank all those people we might have forgotten, but who submitted photos, information, and other support throughout the year. Everything you gave us was greatly appreciated. To our Staff Advisor, Frank Council, and our Representatives at Jostens, Mike Conlon and Susant Taylor, we give our undying appreciation for your help, assistance and patience as we finished this book. Finally, we thank and acknowledge the staff of the yearbook who stuck with us as we tried to figure out what was going on. Without the support, dedication and hard work of Morgan Pepmeier, Rachel Colby, Jennifer Claybaugh, Kazmyn Perry, Jackie Sabol, Olivia Ingle, Ben Cottongim, and Molly Poracky we would not have the book we have today.

As much as we have tried to get everything in this book, and all our facts straight we acknowledge that this book is incomplete and subject to error. To those we have misplaced, wronged, or ignored we give our sincerest apologies. However, we are proud of what this year's staff has accomplished and feel it is time to close this chapter of our lives. The 2008-2009 school year was filled with ups and downs, highs and low, and stability mixed with unexpected changes, but through it all Butler, its student, faculty and staff weathered it all and produced a good year. We can only hope that the future will hold as many good memories as this one did.
